MACMURRAY COLLEGE'S SPEAKER SERIES

"A Hearing-Deaf Connection:
Music in the church? Straight talk for hearing people."

Katherine "Kitty" Aubry will discuss cultural similarities and differences, including the role -- or not -- of music in the deaf community. If you have not seen a visual presentation of music interpreted in American Sign Language, it will lift your spirits and give a whole new meaning to the term "visual communication."

Aubry is a freelance interpreter and adjunct faculty member in the Interpreter Preparation Program at MacMurray College. Proficient in both English and ASL, her wide range of experiences as a life-long interpreter make her a knowledgeable and entertaining presenter of the serious and the lighter sides of cross-cultural communication and, sometimes, the lack of it.

Tuesday, Feb. 7 @ 7:00 p.m.

THORESEN RECITAL HALL,
PUTNAM/SPRINGER CENTER
